THE SUCCESS OF WINTER ROADS

Just like the people who live in “fly-in” communities, Hydro One Remote Communities plans all year to make sure we make the most of winter roads.

Ice, earth and snow make up winter roads. First Nations communities and Ontario’s winter roads program construct the roads so that we can bring much-needed supplies and equipment into communities. While the provincial government provides some funding, the remaining funds are collected from road tolls and other programs.

The result is a remarkable network of more than 3,000 kilometres of roads that turn “fly-in” communities into “drive-in” communities from January to March, every year.

12TH ANNUAL FIRST NATIONS NORTHERN HOUSING CONFERENCE

Hydro One Remotes hosted a booth at the 12th Annual First Nations Northern Housing Conference February 11-13 at the Valhalla Inn in Thunder Bay.

The theme of this year’s conference was “Making Houses Homes.” Since its inception, the conference has focused on creating an environment that seeks to improve the housing conditions of First Nations communities in Canada.
